The California Republicans. The Republican party of California has adopted a platform which contains a declaration of independence from railroad control, and an enumeration of the rights. powers, and duties of the State and national government, as against undue exactions by the railroad power. The popular will being thus voiced, it only re mains for the committee and the caudidates to so conduct the canvass as to leave no room for doubt among the voters of the State that a Republican victory will take the railroad companies subjects instead of masters. That such will be the tone of the campaign, and such its result, we have no doubt. It would be a disaster if the State should in any manner disregard the legal rights of the owners and managers of railroad property, but in avoiding this it is not necessary that the railroad companies should be a law unto themselves. Their roads run over public property by government consent, subject to governmental conditions. They will be wise if they abandon the claim that their own wish and the endurance of the people are the only limits upon the rates of toll that may be exacted by them from the pool" operation in the stock of that com-

The convention demanded the enforcement of the present or a similar Sunday law providing for the suspension of all unnecessary labor on Sunday without attempting to dictate the manner in which the citizen shall spend the day. The Sunday question has been an exciting and troublesome one in California, and it is extremely fortunate that the Republicans have had the good sense to treat it as one on which differences of opinion should be tolerated. The platform avoids both bigotry and licentiousness, and will satisfy all reasonable people.

At the present writing we have not learned who the nominees are, but judging from the declarations of the party policy made by the convention, we believe its work will be accepted and indorsed by the people.

In 1879 the Republican party in Callfornia was outvoted by its opponents by 24,000 majority, but prevailed by a plurality because it had two tickets arrayed against it. This year it meets an undivided enemy. In 1870 it lost thousands of votes because it was not in favor with for an omnibus to take it out to ride. Its the people on the railread question. This year it will have the support of all who and no two alike. were that year disaffected, while the railroad interests can have no reason for preferring the Democratic candidates, who are their avowed enemies. It will be a good day for California when its people shall agree upon the administration of public affairs by a party free from the control of the corporations or the sand-lots. It will be well for the great Central Pacific Railroad corporation when it shall be as free from any desire to dictate in the selection of pub-He officers as it is unwilling that public officers shall interfere with its proper conduct of its own business. The political pendulum has swung to and fro in that State between the extremes of railroad destruction and railroad rule. The railroad system has been to California what the Mississippi River is to the people of the Southwest-alternately a blessing and a scourge. It is the backbone of the industries of the State, and the bearer of her products to home and foreign markets. It is as indispensable as the rains which fertilize her valleys, and has at times

ing strife, exhausting allke to both parties. The policy of shutting great fertile districts out from market by unreasonable railread charges is an unenlightened one, and prevents the settlement and growth of the State. It is not by hard words that these errors can be corrected. That miserable method has been tried long enough. Genuine self-interest, wisely guided by reason, will teach the powerful directory of the Central Pacific in California to make concessions to the people, and will teach the people to take by calm and lawful means, and without objurgations or ill temper, whatever the railroad men may wrongfully withhold. If the campaign in California proceeds in this spirit this year, the Republicans will be united and successful.

Tom Ochiltree at Home. The Galveston papers have interesting accounts of the reception of Major Tom Ochiltree by his fellow-citizens of that city. With one accord they gave him a welcome such as is seldem extended to any citizen upon his return home. He is an independent candidate for Congress, and his election appears to be a foregone conclusion. Tom Ochiltree is a man of national reputation. He is the son of an old Whig leader of the olden time in Texas. He served in the Confederate army, and was a favorite member of the staff of General Longstreet. Like his old commander he abandoned the lost cause when it had perished in the civil war. President Grant appointed him marshal of Texas, which office he satisfactorily filled. He has supported the Republican ticket at all national elections since the war. He has been enough in Washington and New York to have been brought in contact with politicians and business men generally, and being a generous liver and of a social inclination he is a general favorite. The people of the Galveston district do well to send him to represent them, for no one could with more tact, energy, or ability carry their wishes into effect than Tom Ochiltree. On the occasion of the reception referred to he made a happy speech, from which we quote the following:

He referred to the dependence of the coast of Texas upon the national government for assist-ance, and animadverted upon the fact that Texas, in her bounty, had never done snything for her scaports. He said all aid came from Washington and strongly advised that war issues be forgotten He had been a confederate soldier, but had found that when the war was over, and he was beaten, it was better for him and for his country to forget the past, bury it, and enter the line with the great progressive army, whose march was to develop-ment and whose goal was the upbuilding of the whole country. He paid a high tribute to President Arthur, who, he said, was earnestly in favor of the entire obliteration of all the old factions and bitterness of feeling, and who wanted to see the South thrive and prosper even as the North has thriven and pro-pered. He said that the South should turn to that polar star under the Con-stitution, the palm of peace and good will, and should all seek the fostering care of the general government, which could and would assist in the development of our resources, if the aid was proporly sought for. The New York State Convention. The contest for delegates to the Republican State Convention in New York is progressing with unusual good humor, and it is perfectly evident that the convention is to be harmonious, and that its nominees will receive the united support of the Republicans of the State. too early for predictions as to who will be the head of the ticket, although it seems tolerably certain that Governor Cornell will not be his own suecessor. The name of Secretary Folger is recognized as a tower of strength; and his high character, spotless record, and safe conservatism combine to make him exceedingly available. Mr. Wadsworth is a favorite with a goodly element in each of the warring factions of the State, and if the honor falls on him he will doubtless prove a popular candidate. A month ago it did not seem certain that any one would enter the field against Governor Cornell, Nowit seems possible that his name may not go before the convention. His recent interview has done him irreparable damage. In it he admitted his responsibility for statements made by the Albany Evening Journal, which, at the same time, he flatly confessed were untrue. His recital of the facts as to the loan made by him from the Telegraph Company of which he was treasurer, and as to the "blind bold avowal of indefensible acts. There is enough in all these things to make a discussion of them in a State canvass disastrous to the party which would invite it. The indications now are that the name presented by the Saratoga Convention on the 20th will either be that of Wadsworth or Folger.

WHEN Kemper was the governor of Virginia, in good old Bourbon times, he indersed the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes in a message to the legislature. And all the Bourbons said amen. When Cameron, the present governor, indorses the administration of Chester A. Arthur, all the little Bourbon opinionmakers get the cramps and howl with pain. Give them some of Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup. THOSE Republican Independents in Maine will start an organ next week. It will be published every week for one week, and it is believed that its circulation will average 25,000, if the money holds out. The new party is negotiating tickets on election day will be in writing,

THE renomination of Hon. W. H. Calkins in Indiana is a tribute to his personal and official worth and a recognition of his home popularity. There is no man in his district who can endanger his election.

Continuation of Mr. Henkle's Argumen for the Defense.

In the star-route trial yesterday Mr. Henkle re umed his argument. Reviewing the testimony of Boone, Mr. Henkle said that Boone was under indictment for subornation of perjury; that the threw considerable gusto into his testimony and said little mean things to prejudice the defend-ants. He (the counsel) thought that Valle's inter-ecssion with Brady in behalf of Miner was an eviecssion with Brady in behalf of Miner was an evidence of the goodness of his heart. He drew a comparison between this evidence and the parable of the Good Samaritan, and compared Valle to the Good Samaritan and Blask and Merrick to the priest and Levite respectively. He argued there was no evidence of conspiracy between Brady and Valle. If anyone corrupted Brady it must have been Valle, as he was the only member of the firm who had money. There had been no testimony to discredit him on this point. Mr. Henkle then discussed the business arrangements of the defendants, showing that ex-Senator Dorsey took an interest in the contracts because he had loaned his brother and brother-in-iaw money; and that Valle took sub-contracts to scenre himself, as he was advancing his money. Mr. Henkle claimed that Mr. Merrick had made a great deal out of the interchange of allidavits among these contracts, and that the government witnesses had frequently contradicted each other as to signature. At 245 o'clock the court adjourned till Monday, when Mr. Henkle will conclude his argument.

The International Shooting Match. The National Rifle Association of America, whose office is at 102 William street, N. Y., has issued through its secretary, Mr. George B. Seabury, an appeal to all public spirited citizens for contributions to defray the expense attending the entertainment of the English Rille Team at the entertainment of the English Rille Team at the international rifle match, which is to be held at Creedmoor on the 14th and 15th instants. Contributions to the amount of $1.570 have already been received. At least $6,000 will be required to enteriain the visitors in a proper manner. The funds in the treasury of the association are wholly inadequate, and it is therefore compelled to appeal to a generous public for assistance. Contributions will be received by The National Republicant Colonial J. O. P. Burnside, and the Columbia Rifle Club.

Will A. Short has received information that the committee having charge of the arrangements for the triennial conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, to be held next year at San Francisco, have made arrange next year at San Francisco, have made arrange-ments with several railroad companies for reduced rates on different lines. Tickets to San Francisco from the Missouri River, by either overland roue, have been placed at $75 for the round trip, but it the holder goes East by a different road to that by which he came $25 extra will be charged. With the railroads east of Omaha negotiations are still in progress, and it is thought not improbable that the fare for the round trip from Philadelphia, Washington, New York, or Boston to San Fran-cisco will be fixed at $109.
